Babies Mixed in Incubator.
A strange lawsuit has just been heard by the courts of Amsterdam. As far back as February last year a newly born child was taken from the mother's care to be reared in an incubator. In accordance with medical advice the infant was packed in wadding and hurried to the hospital, where the incubators stand ready to receive weakly babies. Meanwhile, in compliance with the mother's desire, the child was given the name of Francis Gerardus and then, at the hospital a receipt was taken for the baby boy and he was put in the care of the incubator. Some weeks passed and the parents received notice that their child was well enough to take away. Imagine the father's surprise when he went to fetch his son to have a baby girl thrust into his arms. During the time the child was in the incubator the outside of the machine was painted, and according to the plaintiffs' advocate, the cards on which are written the particulars regarding the inmates were mixed up. A touch of romance is added to the case by the offer of an anonymous woman, who undertakes to pay the compensation claimed by the parents and a girl who ought to be a boy. Judgment will be given next month—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Mrs. Helen Ames, of Boston, Mass., owns one of the finest private collections of antiques in that city, and has just added two old violins, one an Amati of 164, and the other a Stradivarius of 1700.

Richard Croker's son Frank says his father is happy in England and has no thought of returning to the United States.
